Their presence in the army is not only tokened not sought for, for without their assistance the army could not subsist. Many of these women are as brave as any man; and although their presence in the camp is the occasion of lamentable disorders, and oftentimes give rise to a promise nous intercourse of the sexes, it is nevertheless true that among Mexicans no military organization is possible without them. These women are found in both camps, smoog the Imperialists as well as among the Liberals, filling up the same service with the one as with the other, and equally useful to both.

If the night had brought its tale of wonder to my senses, the day was to be not less amazing. We were just emerging from a thickly set brushwood, planted upon the top of the hill, when we saw coming toward us at fall speed, on their maxtangs, half-a-dozen Mexican officers, attended by many ladies, their heads shaded by large-brimmed straw hate falling down in front and behind their heads. They were clad in short petticoats, ending a little above the knees.

ante failing down in front and behind their heads. They were clad in short petticonts, ending a little above the knees, and wore oriental trowsers underneath, the lower part of which disappeared into high gasters tied up around the askie with a leather string. On their shoulders was a hind of blouse open in front and fixed around the waist by rich gold-embroidered belt, supporting a revolver on one side and a dagger on the other. Inquiring the reason of the presence of these ladies, I was told that they were the bept mistresses of the officers, and that nearly every one in the army was previded with a companion of this sort. In the march they tide in company with the staff officers, and more than one fights side by side with her lover. The majority of them, koweper, fill the office of spy, are an indispensable ornament of the gambling and tippling dens peattered here and there, in many secluded places, for the amusement of guerrilla chieftains.

No sooner was Antonior recognized than he was surpounded by this crowd of early visitors, who seemed to be from San Bartollilo, it was unable to earry along. This deficiency, however, was more than compensated by the advantage of position and by the numerical superiority it enjoyed. Fortified as Carvajal was, his position was impregnable. To these advantages he added that of having a body of men superior to what I had seen in most of the Mexican corps I visited afterward, and consisting of eqqueres, or Indian cattle drivers, of Texans, and of a few French deserters. The force he had gathered at San Antonio when I was there might have reached about 1,000 infantry and 200 cavalry.

tonio when I was there might have reached about I,000 infantry and 200 cavalry.

As I was not particularly desirous to participate in the glory of defending San Antonio, and of running the chances of being shut up in the place as long as the siege lasted, I took leave of Gen. Carvajaland his officers, with many thanks for their kind attention and earnest prayers for their success. I gave to Antonio, my servant, who had resumed his office of Colonel in the Liberal army, an old ratio of boots and a howing king for their of which under old pair of boots and a bowie-knife, the gift of which in A gentleman just from Mexico, brings to a Mobile Sounded by this crowd of early visitors, who seemed to be attempty analous by know all about the movements of positions.

THURSDAY, June 14—F. M.

Gold has been very active at higher prices. The opening rate was 145½, closing at 147½, after selling at 147½.

The Stock market is dull, and upon most Railway and other speculative shares, lower prices have been accepted. The transactions in Governments were upon a large scale, without change in rates. In State bonds and Railway mortgages little done. Eric continues to hold the chief attention of the street and sold down to 50 at the Public Board. In some leading above no transactions were made. senting the second section of the section of the second section of the attention of the street and sold down to 50 at the Public Board. In some leading shares not ransactions were made at the Stock Exchange. After the Board the market was weak. At the Second Board the market was dull, and gene-rally lower. Michigan Southern was heavy and sold at 79½. Eric recovered a fraction, and sold at 50½. After the Board the market was dull but steady. Eric was notive and sold amends the National Banking law and secures the re-demption of the circulating notes in the three Atlantic cities, and reduces materially the volume of currency, there is soon to be another gold panie, and the consequent derangement of all legitimate business. The National Banks for the past year have been steadily flooding every avenue of trade with irredeemable trash, and the country is at this moment further away from specie payments than when the Rebellion collapsed. The prime cause of the present premi-um on gold is to be found in the enormous inflation of the currency, and until it is forced home to be canceled there can be no improvement. It is conceded by all managing wild-cat banks that the poorer the currency the more rapid is its circulation, and consequently the damage it causes to ousiness. As a Treasury note is superior to National Bank notes, Congress will act wisely by taking measures to amend the law and to assume the redemption of the circulation of the National Banks, and canceling the gold-bearing bonds now held as security. Eighteen millions per annum in gold is too large a price to pay for the support of a system of banking which, as at present managed, crip-ples the country, and makes it unable to compete with nations having a currency redeemable in gold.

The obligation of the Government to redeem the dangerous issues of the National Banks would be a contraction, in this, that it would make more valuable the existing currency. It would wipe out $300,000,000 of existing bonds, but it would open the way to fund the surplus cur rency, whatever the amount might be,in new bonds. The bligation to redeem would also bring the entire circuating money of the country to one standard, and make its retirement more easy than while it remains in its present mixed condition. This taking from National Banks the profits of circulation is a sharp remedy, but the disorder caused by the use of hundreds of millions of irredeemable bank notes will not admit of mild remedies, or of delay. It will take from a swarm of banks a large proportion of their profits, but it will not deprive the commerce of the country of any of the benefits of a sound currency. It will wind up a good many banks, and send the officers, shareholders, and a good many of the customers of the banks to some productive employment, to the advantage of the community. The present irredeemable National currency is the gas in the financial balloon which sustains gold at 1477, and demoralizes the industry of the country. It must be reduced, if Congress is not desirous of seeing the country plunged in general bankruptcy.

The Cincinnati Gazette of Tuesday says:

The Concinuate Gazette of Luceday says:

The money market was somewhat closer than last week, owing chiefly to an increased demand for lonus, and partly to a further decrease in the supply of enrency. Rates of intersects are very firm at 108 Hz per cent with the regular discount houses. As high as 154-18 per cent is paid on fair paper outside. Exchange was in larger supply and with a moderate demand the market was heavy and rates a shade lower, closing at 50c, discount to par buying, and par to 50c, premium selling. Geld declined 1; 42 per cent curly in the day, but it recovered in the afternoon, closing at 13c; 413c; buying, and 130; selling.

The Chicago Tribune of Tuesday, says:

The money market to-day was very close, and there was a much greater pressure felt than on Saturday. Early in the day some of the bankers had to "shim" on the sirect for currency to meet the demands of the Clearing House, and Eastern exchange was sold freely for that purpose at discount, and some as low as 1.5 discount. Later in the day there was an argent demand for currency by Milwankee bankers, and upward of $100,000 of Eastern exchange was sold by them at 4 discount. Under this condition of sffairs, the market was unusually close, and some bankers had to refuse accommodation to even first-class borrowers. The rate of discount was steady at 10 per cent per annum; but street rates ruled steady or 1001 per cent per month. The market for Eastern exchange, under the pressure for currency, was very flat, and rates were irregular. The bankers sold to cach other at 150 1-10 discount. Counter rates were also irregular, ranging at $\frac{1}{2}$$1-10 discount buying and par selling.

Neil Brothers & Co., speaking of the growing cotton crop, say:

From Louisians, Texas. and Alabama, we have reports by mail of further rain, the Red River again rising, and Trinity River (in Texas) and Alabama River out of their banks. We fear there is not much chance of a crop on the bottom-lands of those rivers. Many hands are reported as being discharged or driven eit by overflow, but their theor is not, therefore, entirely lost, for we are told they were wandering over the country in search of employment, which will be easily obtained, as the complaint is general in hie uplands and districts not subject to overflow that planters have to abandon a portion of their crops, not having force enough to properly cultivate the land planted in cotton in a wet season like him, when grass graws so rapidly.

At the same time, we bear favorable reports from many parts of the country of the appearance and progress of the crops, and by telegraph as learn that the rains had eased, and the rivers were receding.

The present month will decide for us the question of how much land, after all that has occurred, remains under enture for a cotton crop. The improvement in the weather, and the falling of the rivers will inspire the planters with now courage and hope, and we have no doubt that in a few weeks we shall hear more favorable estimates than how prevail in the South. The amount of damage done by overflow, the extent of replanting after the overflow, the extent of myrry by raid, the extent to which those who had planted more than they could work, have succeeded in getting down the grass, or have abandoned porrious to save the rest, are all points which will now be subjects of anxious inquiry, and cannot be decided for a few weeks. We shall then, and not till then, be able to estimate the persistic crop.

have succeeded in getting down the grass, or tax a abandoned portions to save the rest, are all points which will now be subjects of anxious inquiry, and cannot be decided for a few weeks. We shall then, and not till thee, be able to estimate the possible crop.

There is no doubt that all parties are doing their best, and that with improved weather the uplands will make good crops, and those river and prairie lands which were not overflowed may yet make crops, more or loss good, depending on the future weather and lateness of frest.
